FOR: New York State – Essential Business Designation

RE: Essential Business Services

Weiss Instruments is a manufacturer of Industrial Instruments – thermometers and pressure gauges supplied to the U.S. Government (through military contractors), a Digital Pressure Gauge used on portable medical oxygen devices, and transformer thermometers used for the Power Industry. We also supply building services, restaurant, and food equipment manufacturers, as well as industrial supply houses, all of which have been designated as essential businesses performing essential services. We also supply Thermometers and Pressure Gauges to Chemical facilities, power plants, food and beverage plants, water and wastewater treatment facilities, as well as to businesses providing other essential services who are exempt from the Governor’s Executive Order.

We want to let our customers, suppliers, vendors, and contractors know that, as a result, we are exempt from Governor Cuomo’s Executive Order 202.8 and may continue full business operations as an Essential Business under the Order.

We are complying with all CDC recommendations and have reduced our operations to a thirty-two hour week, with our factory closed one day and office staff split between two days.

Our employees should be allowed to continue to work. We have advised any “at risk “employees to stay at home during this time.

I thank you for your understanding and assistance in this matter – Please contact me directly for any further information.
